'PT' finalizes printing dates

By Benjamin R. Chapman
PASADENA — Schedule dates for the new tabloid Plain Truth are now final for 1975 following a meeting of editorial, publishing and circulation personnel.

The PT will be published biweekly except in May, November and the summer months, when it will be tri-weekly. And no issue will be published immediately following the Feast of Tabernacles.

This schedule was chosen over a twice-monthly rate to enable publishers and mailing houses to work with weekly schedules.

It will also allow the most effective use of weekends by insuring that the newspapers will be into the post offices by Friday and traveling by trucks and trains over the weekend.

Essentially, the schedule is as follows:

Negatives ready and delivered to printers on a Monday afternoon; finished newspapers ready by Tuesday afternoon; to mailing houses Tuesday night; and to the post offices Thursday and Friday.

The first deliveries should be on the following Monday, with most rural areas receiving their copies before Friday that same week.

The issue will be dated the week ending the week of delivery.

Including the January magazine, 21 issues will be published in 1975.

The new-format Plain Truth will have the following issue dates in 1975 (each issue is scheduled for printing and mailing 11 days before the issue date):

Feb. 8, Feb. 22, March 8, March 22, April 5, April 19, May 3, May 24, June 7, June 21, July 12, Aug. 2, Aug. 23, Sept. 6, Sept. 20, Oct. 18, Nov. 1, Nov. 22, Dec. 6, Dec. 20 (1975), Jan. 3 (1976).

A Personal Letter from

Samuel Led Armstrong

Dear Brethren in Christ:

GREETINGS again! I have just finished reading several dozen letters from brethren and ministers alike representing the enormous amount of enthusiastic response we have received from the taped sermon on "The Spirit of Giving" you all heard.

THANK YOU, brethren, for your warm, wonderful attitudes. As I said in my sermon, our Mail Receiving Department personnel found themselves choked up with tears as they read of the profoundly humble and giving spirit of so many who responded to my letter back in mid-December. That same emotion certainly came flowing over me as I read so many letters from brethren who expressed themselves after hearing my sermon.

My father's coworker letter of Jan. 23, written from Bombay, has been mailed and contains news of his most recent trip, including a big "testimonial dinner" before hundreds of top dignitaries in India and news of plans for coming campaigns in India and Egypt.

Prophecy—No Longer a Dirty Word

The INCREDIBLE HUMAN POTENTIAL

How Liberated Can You Get?

Who Will Feed the Hungry Millions?

Tabloid 'PT' becomes reality

PASADENA — The Plain Truth's change to a biweekly tabloid format was termed "smooth" by Plain Truth managing editor Art Ferdig. "There are a few details to work out yet," Mr. Ferdig said, "but we are happy with the first issue."

Nearly two million subscribers in the United States and Canada should get their issue of the new Plain Truth sometime this week. Meanwhile, Plain Truth editors are already at work meeting deadlines for the issue dated for the week ending Feb. 22.

40 Years

The format change comes after 40 years of publishing the Plain Truth magazine.

Herbert W. Armstrong, who with this 41st anniversary issue starts his second 40 years as its editor in chief, wrote in his "Personal": "The time has come when the editors of the Plain Truth feel we must produce a less costly type of magazine, in keeping with the times, but TWICE as often and with increasing circulation — reaching more people more often."

Late last October Garner Ted Armstrong revealed to Plain Truth subscribers in a letter that far-reaching format changes might be made in the Work's publications. Shortly thereafter he appointed a study group that included representatives of the financial, printing, editorial, graphics and related areas of the Work to prepare a preliminary dummy copy of a proposed black-and-white, 16-page journal to succeed the 8½-by-11-inch glossy magazine format.

"We desperately want to increase the circulation of the magazine," Mr. Armstrong said then, "but we can't because of publication costs which are aggravated monthly by inflation. What we are hoping to do is cut publication cost, come out more

Krueger completes purchase of Ambassador press facility

PASADENA — The Krueger Co. signed the contract and formally acquired the facilities of the Ambassador College Press here Jan. 26. The Feb. 8 issue of the new tabloid Plain Truth, published on newsprint, began rolling off the Goss webfed press the next day.

"After a 10-hour meeting on Sunday, Jan. 26, with Krueger, we finally resolved the purchase contract and budget agreements as well as the printing contract, stated Frank Brown, business manager of the Worldwide Church of God.

"They now own the press. In fact, they are running it now," he said. "They ran the PT... We signed the contract on Sunday and on Monday morning they were in there running the PT... The run is now finished with the new format."

Mr. Brown said that 40 percent of the PT's circulation was printed in Pasadena and the remaining 60 percent at the Krueger press in Senatobia, Miss. The issues printed in Mississippi are mailed from Memphis, Tenn., which Mr. Brown said was a good spot from which to mail to the eastern United States.

TABLOID "PLAIN TRUTH" — Reproduced at left is the front cover of the first issue of the Plain Truth to be printed in the tabloid format. Details are given in the story below.

The number of Ambassador College Press employees to transfer to Krueger, headquartered in Scottsdale, Ariz., has not yet been established. About 10 employees apparently have decided not to seek employment with Krueger.

"With a few exceptions, all former employees at Ambassador Press were offered employment by Krueger," said Jay Goldby, production-control manager and liaison between Krueger and Ambassador.

Before the transition will be complete, some changes in the physical plant will be made, including the re-routing of electrical lines, change of gas meters, addition of two walls and a few doors and the remodeling of the front lobby.

"These changes are necessary due to the fact that the college will still maintain use of certain areas of the large press building," stated Earl Smith, Ambassador College architect.

often and increase circulation."

Since that initial brainstorming session in November and subsequent approval by Herbert W. Armstrong, three dry runs of the Plain Truth in its new format were circulated for in-house criticism and input.

27 Articles

Finally, last week a black-and-white Plain Truth accented by a blue logotype and border rolled off Krueger presses in Pasadena, Calif. (See TABLOID, page 10)

Pasadena meetings host Canadian superintendents

PASADENA — Canadian district superintendents met here Jan. 19 to 23 with Leslie L. McCullough, director of the International Division, and his staff.

Steve Martin, assistant to Mr. McCullough, said the meetings were to "discuss general administrative matters and personnel placement. Of primary importance in the personnel area is the possible hiring of some 14 ministerial assistants after Ambassador College's graduation in May."

Participating were Dean Wilson, director of the Canadian Work; district superintendents Richard Pinelli of Vancouver, B.C.; Charles Bryce of Edmonton, Alta.; Glen White of Winnipeg, Man.; Gary Antion of Toronto, Ont.; and Cam Catherwood of Montreal, Que.; and Vancouver-office manager Don Miller.

"The guys really appreciated getting out of the Canadian winter into the Southern California sunshine," Mr. Wilson said.

He said that the ministers discussed churches and Bible studies and the new Plain Truth.

"We also had a very inspiring meeting with Paul Flatt, Dennis Pyle and Burk McNair," Mr. Wilson said. "We discussed building up of the churches and Bible studies along the borders."

(Mr. Flatt, Mr. Pyle and Mr. McNair are members of the Church Administration Team.)

Mr. Wilson said the Work has been growing steadily in Canada. He said income is up 21 percent for the fiscal year, membership is up 12 to 13 percent over 1974, and there have been 5 to 6 percent more baptisms.

"We added 13 new churches and several new Bible studies," he said. "We had good growth all the way around. We have several new churches planned, as well as outlying Bible studies. The growth pattern this year looks like it will be just as good or better than it was in 1974."

TO THE EDITOR

Frustrating inflexibility

I have just finished reading your interesting article, "A Look at Big Sandy's Flight Department," in the Jan. 6, 1975, issue of the WN while waiting an extra hour and half more than the normal 45-minute lead time for a commercial flight out of Dulles Airport in Washington, D.C. I wholeheartedly agreed with Mr. [Ronald] Dart's evaluation of the tremendous time savings a private aircraft provides over flying commercial. It is not only frustrating to try and work around inflexible commercial flights with baggage checks and claims, lead time at terminals, etc., but it is very inefficient and fatiguing to try to get much business done.

Kiwi comment

As a former "Kiwi" I was really excited to read the articles on the Australian and New Zealand Work (Dec. 9, 1974, Worldwide News). Having made a return trip to both countries just one year ago, we could hardly believe the growth rate in some of the areas we had had the pleasure to attend services in. Please keep articles coming from "down under" and other places far away from here, as such articles do help to unite us with brethren everywhere and broaden our outlook on the worldwide work.

Sharing with the less fortunate

In his "Personal" column (Jan. 6 edition), Mr. Garner Ted Armstrong stated that the extra-second-tithe account had been dropping steadily, due, in part, to questionings from within and without about the policies of second tithe.

As a tax accountant I thought perhaps the following comments would encourage the turning in of excess second tithe.

Excess second tithe turned in is tax deductible as a charitable contribution. Therefore, a family that turns in its excess receives an automatic blessing.

For example, if a family that is in a 20 percent tax bracket turns in $500 it will save $100 in income taxes. For them this $100 tax saving is equal to earning an extra $125 before taxes. Further, since we tithe on gross income, tax savings or refunds are a return of money on which titles have already been paid. This family would have to earn an extra $167 to net $100 after first tithe, second tithe and income taxes.

Lastly, the $100 tax saving may be spent whenever and for whatever the family desires, which second-tithe money cannot be.

All in all, quite a financial blessing for just doing what we should anyway... sharing excess second-tithe money with less-fortunate brethren.

The size of a large period

I received my Dec. 23, 1974, issue of the WN recently, and as usual I thoroughly enjoyed reading it. We can understand how people can get titles of the different booklets confused, but why would someone ask for a mustard seed? Maybe I can explain. A friend of mine gets the Church of God, Seventh Day, publication from Jerusalem. In one of their issues they offered seeds of the mustard tree to everyone requesting some. My friend received some and showed them to me. They are the size of a large period. The publication showed the picture of a man standing beside a mustard tree, and the tree was almost twice the height of the man. So, you see, the request was sent to the wrong address.

Give your beef a weigh

In regards to buying a beef on the hoof ["Readers' Solutions Sealed With a K.I.S.S.," Dec. 23], one should consider all cost per each pound of beef that goes into the freezer. It was stated that a beef would dress out at 55 percent; however, this is hanging weight. There is another 30 percent loss to the finished package. If one was to buy a 1,000-pound beef at 30 cents a pound on the hoof, it would come to $300 for 550 pounds of hanging meat.

To cut, wrap and quick-freeze at 12 cents a pound would cost $66. There is 30 percent loss in excess bones and fat, so you end up with 385 pounds of meat. It costs $300 plus $66 plus $10 [for the killing] or $376 for 385 pounds of meat. The meat in the freezer averages approximately 98 cents a pound, including the hamburger, which is still a good buy if you can find a beef at 30 cents on the hoof.

Quite an act

Several months ago [June 24, 1974] was an article on the tornado that raged through Oral Roberts University campus causing major structural damage, and I was wondering if the insurance covered the damage or did the insurance company consider this event "an act of God"?

A.M. Faulhaber Jr.
Clearbrook, B.C.

George Stovall, vice president of operations for Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla., said that insurance covered most of the damage, except for the deductible allowance in the policies. He said that the Oral Roberts Association Building, an office complex, was back in use within about a month after the June 8 tornado. Mr. Stovall said no structural damage occurred to that building. Another structure, the Aerobics Building, was damaged, he said, but was ready for school by September.

Better to laugh

Somehow, I managed to restrain myself from writing and congratulating you on your marvelously funny and now famous "Feast Centerfold" ["Overheard at the Feast," a cartoon in the Oct. 14, 1974, WN], but writing always seems to come easier when one's adrenaline is pumping (excusable only when labeled: "righteous indignation").

The fuddy-duddies of the W.W.C. of G. who failed to see the humor in truly objective reporting have been heard from — too much! Why is it so painful to see ourselves the way we really are — to see in a cartoon the small (I hope) amount of human nature that drags us all down occasionally?

Fuddy-duddies, don't you ever see anything similar to the "objectionable" examples in others? How about in yourselves? Don't you ever find any leaven in your house after Passover?

To see things the way they really are can be terribly funny. Besides, it's better for you to laugh than cry.

Feast site added

Utah site termed excellent addition

BIG SANDY — In an effort to inform readers about the Salt Lake City Feast site The Worldwide News contacted Festival director Bill McDowell and Salt Lake City church pastor Carl Koellner and asked them about the new site.

Mr. Koellner said several church pastors had already contacted him desiring information about the site. Some members had expressed concern about a lack of facilities and services available in the city.

Mr. McDowell said he feels Salt Lake City will be an excellent addition to the array of current sites being used. "We have tried to have a wide range of sites available," he said. "If you like the ocean, we have Jekyll Island. If you like mountains, we have Squaw Valley. If you prefer a drier climate or more of a desert atmosphere, we have Tuscon. We have northern sites and we have southern sites."

"We feel our new sites in Salt Lake, Spokane and Roanoke are all fine additions. I might also add that we need to keep in mind the purpose of the Feast. We are going to the Feast to worship God and observe His Festivals and not just to have a good time, though we all realize God intends for us to enjoy ourselves," Mr. McDowell said.

We also asked Mr. Koellner, who has served in Salt Lake City for three years, questions about facilities. A transcript of that interview follows:

Are there any nice restaurants in Salt Lake City?

Oh, yes. We have a variety of cuisines ranging from Japanese and Korean to Chinese and Cantonese. There are several good Mexican restaurants and a fine Greek restaurant. There is The Hawaiian, where you have the atmosphere of sitting inside a rainstorm with the wind blowing trees down while you eat. There is The Athenian, which serves Greek food. Another place has a Scottish atmosphere complete with the Highland dance and bagpipes. And none of this takes into account numerous steakhouses, Italian restaurants, sandwich shops and the like.

Would you say the dining facilities there are on a par with most American cities?

Absolutely. I would say even above par.

What about recreational facilities?

We have fantastic skiing much of the year, but there won't be enough snow for skiing during the Feast. We'll have waterskiing — we have several resort areas where one can water-ski or sail. We have horseback riding, which is a popular sport out here. A lot of people still have the western atmosphere here. We have hiking and all kinds of mountain climbing available with fantastic mountains up to 13,000 feet within a 30- to 45-minute drive from downtown. We have excellent fishing. The trout fishing in the mountains is excellent. Up in the northern part of the Salt Lake it's fresh water so you can catch all kinds of fish — bass, crappie and bluegill.

There is the Heber Creeper, which is an old-time train which runs from Heber City to Bridalveil Fall. It is a two-hour round-trip ride. Members of the train's crew play their guitars and sing old railroad songs.

There is also a soaring club near Heber.

In the greater Salt Lake City area we have several fine spas, several fine parks, plenty of golf courses as well as a number of college campuses some people might enjoy visiting. There are BYU [Brigham Young University], Utah State and Weber State.

We also have a very fine zoo in the city. We have two cable cars which will take you to the top of two mountains. There is an old coal- and silver-mining town in Park City.

You have the Salt Lake yacht cruise where you can purchase a meal, hear a Hawaiian band and sail around the Great Salt Lake, which is about 40 miles wide and 70 miles long.

Is the Salt Lake polluted at all?

Not really, it's just heavy with the salt concentration. The beaches are a little dirty because of the brine flies. They are a little irritating and seem to make the water look dirty, but if you get a little farther out where it's deep and blue it's a lot of fun. You can't help but float with all that salt concentration.

Then it's hard to drown in that lake?

Yes, it is. It should be a very pleasant place to go during the Feast. Sometimes I take my family out and we make a chain by holding onto each other's ankles. The water is very shallow for several miles out.

What about the auditorium we'll meet in — the Salt Palace?

It's a beautiful facility — a $17 million complex which seats 15,000. It's comparable to the auditorium used at the Tucson Feast site — very nice.

The Utah Stars play there during the basketball season, don't they?

Yes, the Utah Stars and the Salt Lake Golden Eagles of the Central Hockey League. We have a lot of the big-name entertainers that come to that place too.

How close are the motels and restaurants to the Salt Palace?

We have over 4,000 rooms available within walking distance of the Salt Palace. If someone wants close proximity to the Salt Palace and a very nice room, we have a fantastic number of large chain motels within walking distance of the auditorium. Some of them are the Royal Inn, a six-story complex; the Triarc Travel Lodge, which is 13 stories; two Holiday Inns; a Hilton; a Ramada Inn; a Rodeway Inn; and another travel lodge with walking distance of the Salt Palace. The Triarc Travel Lodge is quite a unique building. Wayne Cole stayed there one time and really enjoyed it. It's a high-rise structure that's built in a triangular shape and a very nice facility. A Sheraton Hotel should be available for 1976.

What do you consider within "walking distance"?

Most motels are six blocks away at the most. Some might be as far as 10 blocks.

There are also some fantastic condominiums in and near the mountains which I think are on a par with Squaw Valley and which may be available to us.

How far from the auditorium?

Nineteen miles via freeway or a 25-minute drive. I think that some of the people that like mountain living among the pines and furs would love condominiums.

Is it true Salt Lake is dry — that is, you can't buy liquor?

It is dry in that there is a tight liquor control here. But as far as the unavailability of the liquor, that's not true at all.

There are plenty of liquor stores and most restaurants sell the infamous Utah minibottle which is much like the small individual liquor bottles served on commercial airlines.

The Salt Lake Valley Convention Bureau is trying to establish a plan which will allow us a permit card to get into a half dozen private clubs. A private club can sell drinks across the bar like any other state. They are going to try to issue those out to us upon registration.

Can you buy beer in any restaurant?

You can purchase it anywhere — markets, etc., but wine and hard liquor both have to be obtained from a liquor store or a counter in a restaurant. At the restaurants you purchase the minibottles from the cashier and the establishment provides setups or mixers.

Does Salt Lake City have smog?

Sometimes in the winter if there is an inversion layer and we have smog. But during the summer and fall we usually have breezes so it is rare.

Overall I feel Salt Lake is a very scenic setting and I think everyone will really enjoy being here for the Festival.

Canoes and cliffs condition Kiwis

By Kerry Gubb

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — For New Zealand December is summertime, and about 50 Kiwi teens have just spent 12 days in the brilliant sunshine on the shores of a lake on the North Island at the Worldwide Church of God Summer Educational Program (S.E.P.).

Months in advance a tightly packed program of sports classes, overnight camping trips, open forums, educational films and fun was carefully set out. Instructors found that much of the information utilized at the S.E.P. in Orr, Minn., helped in teaching principles and procedures of sports and safety.

The camp provided an ideal site, with ready access to the lake for skiing, sailing and canoeing, plenty of open field space for riflery and archery and close proximity to a 1,500-foot bush-covered mountain where 46 campers roughed a drenching night in the scrub.

Taxed but Unperturbed

After a steep hike of several hours, after maneuvering up and around a sheer rock face, and after working hard in the diminishing light to erect some primitive cover for the night, it was a little taxing on the spirits to find the rain falling hard all night. But, unperturbed, the group completed the trek the next morning.

The same evening's storm dampened another venture too: a canoe trip and bivouac for the senior students upstream several miles. This let them use what they'd learned in canoeing classes.

To top it off, some cliff overhangs and the surprise appearance of a large, heavy-gauge plastic sheet provided sufficient shelter to keep the canoeists high and dry. Add to this a warm camp fire, plenty of food and the rain falling just feet away and you'll have a concept of roughing it in style.

For the first part of the program, activity classes were basic and safety-oriented. Then the introduction of electives made it possible for students with preferences to continue to develop expertise in those sports, while those with other interests could do likewise elsewhere.

Sports Day

These all culminated in inter-dormitory and staff competition on Sports Day. The best from each section pitted their marksmanship in archery and riflery against other teams.

The addition of softball, water polo, swimming and other events insured everyone's participation.

Full use was made of the camp's military-style confidence course. Balance testers, coordination-building obstacles, a wall of tires and a "flying fox" combined as an overall test of ability and drive as students pushed themselves to improve their timing.

S.E.P. is possibly the most packed two weeks of a Worldwide Church of God teenager's year in New Zealand.

That was it for another year. Already adjustments, suggestions, bookings and other plans are being made for S.E.P. 1975-76.

Now you know

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Thomas McGuire of suburban Pennington, N.J., was ordered to court by the City of Philadelphia Jan. 7 for failure to pay a nonresident wage tax.

But the city had to admit it made a mistake. Thomas is 8 years old.

Pasadena campus to expand range of summer programs

By William Stenger
Ambassador Registrar

PASADENA — Ambassador College here will have a greatly expanded summer session, with several programs being offered for the first time.

Regular college-credit classes will be taught in an 11-week term from June 2 to Aug. 15 and two five-week terms beginning June 2 and July 14 respectively.

The 11-week term is primarily to meet the needs of continuing Ambassador students, but will be open to others who may be interested in taking some courses.

The five-week sessions are primarily for students who can spend only part of their summer in Pasadena.

Overseas Programs

In addition to on-campus instruction, programs are planned for Jerusalem and Germany. Ambassador faculty members Gunar Freibergs and Chris Patton will offer courses in Biblical archaeology, Biblical geography and Middle Eastern history to students at the Jerusalem dig.

Courses in advanced German and German civilization will be conducted by Walter Rupp in the resort area of Bad Oeynhausen, West Germany.

Program for Juniors

A brand-new program to be instituted this summer is the Eleven Plus Program for students who have completed the 11th grade in high school. Any student who has completed the junior year of high school (or the equivalent outside the United States) and would like to earn college credit may apply for enrollment in the summer session here.

Besides being eligible to take regular freshman-level college courses, such students may take a special course introducing them to college life, which will help them prepare for college admission and career selection.

Eleven Plus students will be eligible to live in college residence halls. Those living in the greater Los Angeles area may live at home.

Basketball and Cheerleading

The Ambassador College Athletic Department will offer one-week camps in basketball and cheerleading-songleading to young people 9 to 16. This will provide an opportunity for potential Ambassador Royals and Royalettes to receive firsthand instruction from Ambassador's varsity coaches.

Other recreational programs for youths in this area are also planned by athletic director Jim Petty and his staff.

Some programs still being developed include continuing-education workshops in arts and crafts and first aid for adults, instructional and recreational programs for elementary-school students and a special instructional program for Japanese students.

How to Apply

SOUNDLY DESIGNED — The latest in computers? Not quite. The members of the sound crew of the Dayton, Ohio, church designed and built this sound system from components. It serves the present needs of the Dayton churches and can power additional speakers, should the church move to a larger hall. (Photo by Jim Chapman)

Crew soundly designs audio system

By Jim Chapman
Dayton Pastor

DAYTON, Ohio — Members of this church area's sound crew, anticipating needs and tiring of the old system's constant breakdowns, came up with a solution. They would build a new sound system.

The plan was to purchase the components in kit form, put them together and enclose the new system in a strong, portable case. This method would keep the cost down and enable the church to have a reliable backup system.

The new system was designed by David Ripp, who considered the need for versatility, dependability and portability. His efforts paid off; the unit works well for ball games, outings, dances and Sabbath services and Bible studies.

It also can power several more speakers, should the church eventually move to a larger hall.

Ken Hoover and Larry Brewer built the system. They spent hours putting the complicated kit together.

The combined efforts of both Dayton churches paid for the system. Several successful work projects were undertaken, including roofing a house and tearing up old rail beds and selling the steel.

This, coupled with donations, added up to success.

Mr. Hoover also negotiated a reasonable deal for two wireless microphones.

After months of hard work the units were placed in the compact cabinet and tested. Everything works just fine, including the extra outlet in the back for a coffee pot.

'God . . . gave her back'; couple reunites after trauma

By Paul P. Dzing
Chicago Member

CHICAGO, Ill. — It was Sept. 8, 1974. The band was playing; people were dancing and enjoying themselves. It was "The Dzings' Thing," a ninth-wedding-anniversary party and reconfirmation of our vows.

But things for my wife, Janet M. Dzing, didn't look or feel happy about five months before, on the morning of April 19, 1974.

She was lying on a stretcher in the emergency room of Holy Cross Hospital here, bleeding from a gunshot wound she had received two hours before from a neighbor, an off-duty policeman who thought she was a burglar. (The Worldwide News, Sept. 2, 1974.)

The morning hours of April 19 were crucial for Janet. The doctors said the bullet went through her liver and shattered it. "If she makes it through the next 48 hours she has a chance," one of them said.

Things looked bleak. But after she was anointed she began improving and gained strength.

With a few setbacks and complications she continued her stay in the hospital for the next two months.

While she was still in the hospital we received the news about the change in Church doctrine on divorce and remarriage from a tape by Herbert W. Armstrong. (At the time of the accident we had been separated about 2½ years.) The timing for this good news was perfect. To Janet it was like a shot in the arm. At times she would sit up for 20 minutes — but this time she sat up two hours listening to the tape.

Her liver healed completely without complications. After about a six-month recuperation at home, Janet is now back at work full time, though she still experiences some pain and discomfort.

She has been brave all the way — never a defeated attitude during her traumatic experience. I wonder if I could have done it.

Back at "The Dzings' Thing" people commented on how well Janet looked and how happy they were for the both of us. One of our deacons told me, "You know, God took her out of the grave and gave her back to you."

And I couldn't agree with him more.

That same night after the party we reminisced and thanked our God for what He had done. And we haven't stopped thanking Him ever since.

REUNITED — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dzing were recently reunited after being separated for 2½ years. Mrs. Dzing was severely wounded in April, 1974, when she was shot by an intoxicated policeman, but is now almost completely recovered.

A Medal for Major

When Jimmy Wilson came home from school he asked his mother, "Why is Major sitting under the table?"

"He went under there to pout," said Mrs. Wilson. "I scolded him for barking at the furnace repairman."

"He's our watchdog. He's supposed to bark at strangers," Jimmy said, pulling the two-year-old beagle out from under the table.

"But he's supposed to be quiet when I tell him to," replied Mrs. Wilson.

Jimmy shook his finger at Major.

"You must mind, Major. You have to be a good example for all the dogs in the neighborhood."

Major felt better as Jimmy stroked his neck and ears. He would try to mind better, but it was hard to be quiet when a complete stranger came to the back door. Fortunately, the furnace man had soon left, saying that he could find no gas leaking anywhere.

Mr. Wilson came home from work, the family had a good dinner, and they raked leaves in the yard until bedtime. Major did not mind when Jimmy ordered him into his bed at the bottom of the basement stairs. He gave him a good-night lick on the chin.

All Was Not Well

Silence settled over the house, but Major's sleep was disturbed. His nose detected a strangely unpleasant scent. It grew stronger and he began to pace the dark area near the stairs. All was not well. Major bobbed up the stairs and pushed his nose against the kitchen door. It was shut.

"Aw-wooo!"

He waited. "Aw-wooo-oooh!" he called in a sharper tone.

Still no one came. "Aw-wooo-ooow-oh!"

Footsteps — heavy and foreboding. The door opened and Mr. Wilson was angry. "Major! What's the matter with you? Go back to sleep. All that howling is giving me a headache. Say, wait a minute. I smell gas."

Major bounded on into the kitchen. The smell was thick in there. Mr. Wilson staggered to the back door and flung it open. Major sprang out, gulping in good night air. He watched in doggy bewilderment as a red fire truck and a long white car with noisy sirens screeched up and parked in front. He yapped in dismay as Jimmy and his mother were carried out of the house and he tried to leap into the back of the long car with Jimmy. Mr. Wilson's big hands caught him around the middle.

He was carried, legs pawing the air, to the next-door neighbors.

"Aw-arrooh!" Major protested when they chained him to the swing on the front porch. This was where he had recently spent 10 days while his family went away to a place they called the Feast of Tabernacles.

"Awh-oooh!" It was lonesome to be away from his family again.

Gentle hands of the neighbor lady stroked his head and he stopped moaning, accepted a piece of cold chicken liver and settled down on an old hunting jacket for the night.

The next morning the Wilson family came across the yard to get him. He leaped into Jimmy's arms and smiled.

Major Gets a Medal

"You're going to get a medal, Major," Jimmy told him. "You saved our lives. You're a good dog!"

Slurp. Major washed Jimmy's cheek with his tongue. A medal? He hoped it tasted as good as chicken liver.

"Come on, fella, let's go home."

Leaping down, Major reached the back step before Jimmy did and he sat down to wait. "Oh, it's good to be home," he told Jimmy with his wide grin and thumping tail.

Facing unemployment . . .

Goldsmith becomes coppersmith

By Phil Stevens
BRICKET WOOD, England — Facing unemployment upon the closing of the Ambassador College Press in England, Australian-born Bruce Goldsmith set about finding an outlet for the copper etchings that he had produced in his spare time.

Mr. Goldsmith, 29, an ex-medical student from Sydney, came to England 3½ years ago, intending to make a stopover on a world trip. But the campus here convinced him to make England his home for a while.

As a spare-time project Mr. Goldsmith started producing charcoal drawings that he intended to have printed in the form of greeting cards. After making some drawings he then asked a local platemaker to produce the necessary plates suitable for printing the pictures in the conventional way.

While he watched the platemaking process it occurred to him that the copper plate being used would itself provide an excellent surface for reproducing pictures.

Abandoning his original idea, Mr. Goldsmith experimented with this new concept, enthusiastically aided by the platemaker. He was allowed to use the scrap plates that had been collected at the Ambassador College Press.

Artistic Terms

"I always have liked to express myself in artistic terms," Mr. Goldsmith said, "and here was an opportunity to do original drawings and transfer them into a marketable item."

Mr. Goldsmith spent some 200 hours in developing the best method of producing a presentable product.

One early problem was finding a way to provide sufficient contrast between the relief copper subject and the background.

Painting the background by hand was slow and uneconomical. Spraying seemed to be the answer, but since no money was available for a compressor, aerosol cans had to be used.

Tests had shown that a mat-finish paint provided the most successful results, but very few colors were available. Not happy with these limitations, Mr. Goldsmith set out to find a way to use other paints and still retain the desired mat finish.

In his search for alternatives, he found a mat coating that provided the quality he wanted.

Now it was possible to use an unlimited range of colors.

Interest was already growing in the production of these pictures. More experiments showed that by a heat process, varied colors displaying the richness of the copper could be achieved.

"As far as I know this is a unique process," explained Mr. Goldsmith.

Finding Markets

With the production of colorful copper etchings now practical, markets had to be found.

Several shops in Carnaby Street, London's youth fashion center, were willing to display the pictures for Mr. Goldsmith. Other big London stores have also expressed interest. A newly opened restaurant has purchased two as wall decorations. He currently is investigating the United States market.

Mr. Goldsmith prefers to aim at getting individual commissions because he can offer a unique process for personalized pictures.

As an Australian living in Britain, he is not entitled to many of the social benefits the British can receive when unemployed, so it is now essential that he make this project a success. What started out to be a spare-time venture may provide this enterprising member with a livelihood that will enable him to express his artistic talents.

Disasters inflict heavy damage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nearly 1,000 tornadoes, floods, storms and other natural disasters rained $1.4 billion in damage on U.S. communities in 1974, the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration said Jan. 3.

Included was a record series of 140 tornadoes that touched down in a 24-hour period between April 3 and 4 — more than three times as great as the previous highest one-day period in 1965, when there were 47 twisters.

Federal weather experts said such frequent tornadoes in such a brief period of time could happen only "once in a century or two."

Disastrous twisters buffeted 187 counties in 10 states during the first week of April, killing 336 persons, injuring 9,000 and leaving almost 5,000 families homeless.

Formosan's fourth Feast try fruitful

By Clement Lim
SINGAPORE — Persistence has paid off for the only Worldwide Church of God member in Formosa (Nationalist China).

Dr. Kenneth I. Lee has been denied an exit visa to attend the Feast of Tabernacles for the past three years. However, he has received permission, on his fourth try, to attend the Feast in the Philippines this year.

The Feast sites Dr. Lee had failed to reach were Baguio, Philippines; Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia; and Hawaii.

The Formosan government strictly regulates overseas travel by its nationals. And many countries do not welcome Formosan nationals.

Dr. Lee was in Singapore recently on a package tour to Bangkok, Singapore and Hong Kong. He met Guy Ames, director of the office here, and a few Church members in Singapore.

Dr. Lee also met a few of his old schoolmates.

Dr. Lee, 67, graduated from the Pennsylvania Medical School of St. John University, Shanghai. He later served as an X-ray resident at a hospital in Chicago, Ill.

He now works at the Changhua Christian Hospital, Formosa.

Making soap the Galloway

By Scott Moss

BIG SANDY — Homemade soap. Most of us have visions of a smoking caldron wearily being stirred for hours on end to yield a coarse product harsh enough to take your hide off if you don't rinse thoroughly and quickly.

Recently Lana Akers, a senior at Ambassador College here, and I visited the home of retired chiropractor Duke Galloway, a member who lives a few miles from the campus. The homemade soap we watched him make that morning changed our minds about caldrons, weary stirring and harshness.

The process Dr. Galloway and his wife Helen use is a simple mix-stir-pour sequence that can be used by anyone with a few porcelain pots and a kitchen table.

"Making homemade soap is a fairly simple process that has all but disappeared and been forgotten by the American housewife," said Dr. Galloway. "One satisfying aspect is the cleaning quality of the home-produced article against the super-market product. You will find your clothes whiter and colors brighter without the use of special bleaches or whiteners, and softer without the need of special softeners. Home-made soap costs about 40 cents for nine pounds."

I checked a local store and found that nine pounds of comparable commercial bar soap cost around $5.70, figuring 15 cents for a 3½-ounce bar of Ivory.

The few utensils necessary include a pot to mix the water and lye (do not use aluminum or galvanized utensils), another pot to mix the lye water and fat in, and some kind of mold to let the soap cool in.

The Galloways have found the best mold to be a simple cardboard box of the type cases of beer are packed in. The box should be lined with waxed paper and the corners reinforced with masking tape.

The ingredients: six pounds (12 cups) of fat, vegetable oil or tallow; one 13-ounce can of lye; one-half cup of 20 Mule Team borax; five cups of cold water.

Mix the lye with the water, being careful with the dangerous fumes and intense heat generated. Even when cool, the lye water is caustic, so don't get any on you.

When the lye water has cooled to lukewarm, add the borax and the prewarmed fat you have prepared by straining through a cheesecloth. Make sure you add the water solution to the fat slowly and with gentle stirring (the mixture will separate if dealt with too vigorously).

Continue to stir slowly until the mixture is the thickness of honey, then pour it into the mold and let cool for four to five hours before cutting. Let the batch cure for at least two weeks before using.

Good sources of fat are drippings from the kitchens of you and your friends. And almost any restaurant is a potential source; restaurants change the oil in their deep-fat friers periodically.

To produce a jelly-type shampoo, take one-half pound of finished and cured homemade soap and shred it into one-half gallon of water. Bring it to a boil and then simmer for 10 to 15 minutes. After cooling, store it in a covered container to prevent it from drying out.

Additional information on soap-making is available free from the Pennwalt Corp., Pennwalt Building, 3 Parkway, Philadelphia, Pa., 19102.

Or, for a more detailed description of Dr. Galloway's soap recipe, those interested may write: Soap Recipe, The Worldwide News, Box 111, Big Sandy, Tex., 75755, U.S.A.

FROM START TO FINISH — Above: With tabletop protected against heat, add lye in a well-ventilated area, being careful to avoid noxious fumes. Let cool, then add borax. Above left: Reinforce box corners so hot liquid soap won't seep out. Left: Make sure you have a piece of plywood with which to carry the mold (the hot soap weakens the cardboard even with a waxed-paper lining). Lower left: Lana Akers, a senior at Ambassador College, Big Sandy, pours soap into the mold. Below: Dr. Duke Galloway and Lana Akers with finished, cured and cut bars from an earlier batch. Girl stops breathing; father saves life

By Gavin Cullen
Toowoomba Elder

TOOWOOMBA, Australia — The life of a minister includes much joy and happiness. The event that brings me the greatest joy is to see the hand of God intervene in the life of a sick child.

On Friday night, Dec. 6, was an example. I received an urgent phone call from Mrs. Bob Leavy, who said her 3-year-old daughter Ruth was not breathing.

I covered the short distance at breakneck speed and found Bob, her husband, holding Ruth over his slightly bent knee with her head down. She had blood over her face and her breath was barely noticeable as horribly slow gurgling sounds.

We immediately knelt down, fervently praying for God to intervene while I anointed her.

From then on Ruth's breathing became easier, so I then asked Mr. Leavy what happened.

Breathing Stopped

He doesn't know why he decided to walk up the hallway around 10:30 p.m. but as he did he heard a slight noise from the bedroom. It didn't sound abnormal, but he decided to check on the children anyway. That was when he found little Ruth struggling for life with her throat clogged with phlegm.

He called his wife and between the two of them they tried to pry Ruth's jaws open to clear the passage in her throat. At this stage she actually stopped breathing for around 30 seconds.

The only way Mr. Leavy could clear Ruth's throat was to force his forefinger through her teeth, severely lacerating it, and clearing her throat as best as possible.

This is where the blood I saw on Ruth's face came from — Mr. Leavy's finger.

After anointing her, we laid her across two chairs with her face down to stop the throat clogging again. By the time the doctor came she was regaining consciousness and beginning to whimper. At this stage that was a glorious sound.

God's Intervention

During his examination the doctor said we would have to take Ruth to the hospital; there was still much phlegm and blood from her father's finger there that needed to be pumped out.

So Mr. Leavy and I took her to the hospital, where, after preparing her for the pump, they could find nothing to pump out. God surely intervened.

We are all sure that when God saw little Ruth struggling on her bed He took matters into His own hands. Maybe, or rather probably, He prompted Bob Leavy to walk down the hallway.

It is quite normal for a child's jaws to lock when they choke badly. If any parents find their child in the same situation, it is always best to use a wooden instrument the size and shape of a wooden clothespin. Pry that between the child's teeth, and then put your finger in the mouth to clear the throat. Keep something like this handy in the first-aid cupboard. It may save your child's life.

A Personal Letter

use even ONE repeat from older broadcasts! But — at least I can WRITE as much as possible!

Clarification

One point I would like to clarify concerns statements I have made both in sermons and in print in these pages and in The Bulletin concerning buying gold and silver.

Some have thought I meant it would be wrong to own any gold or silver or to invest in precious metals at all! NOT SO, brethren! Investments — using money to make money — are not wrong in God's sight. And this is precisely what Jesus meant when he rebuked the slothful servant for not placing his pound in the bank. Even if the servant himself didn't know how to make his money earn additional money, at least the bank-ers did.

Precious metals CAN be a good investment, but only under certain conditions and at a certain time. I won't repeat all I said earlier concerning how volatile an investment it can be; storage problems, insurance and assay charges, etc., but my comments were meant to be a warning against OVERLY investing in such a potentially DANGEROUS area. Some few have virtually "lost their shirts" on futures contracts — buying shares in nonexistent metals, for example.

BUT I have received several letters from those who wondered about small investments in silver or gold — wondering if it would somehow be "wrong" to own.

The answer is NOT Not at all! If someone invested in gold or silver about 10 years or so ago, then it was probably a very wise investment! Very likely that person has far more than DOUBLED his money since, and probably quadrupled it.

But to invest in it NOW? I frankly don't know whether that would be wise or foolish. I DO know that many of the leading banks do refuse to deal in it and that even top investment advisers are divided in their opinions from time to time.

Where Your Treasure Is

But the PRINCIPLE of saving for an emergency — such as a personal savings account, land, cattle or even precious metals — is NOT WRONG! The whole point is, WHERE IS OUR HEART? Jesus said, "But where your treasure is" there will your heart be also.

But there is an extreme to which some people might go in *mis*applying that verse — thinking Christ meant it is wrong to have any material goods beyond a single day's necessities!

Not at all! God's Word makes it clear it is right for a father to save up "for his children's children" (his own grandchildren!). So if any have savings of this nature, please be circumspect and cautious; seek wise counsel and make your own decisions based on wisdom and caution! Do not think for a moment that savings accounts or private ownership of precious metals "for a rainy day" are wrong! It is the HOARDING of them — the placing of one's whole concern, attention, anxiety, worry, the day-to-day involvement of someone who is almost totally absorbed by a terri-

Student honored

FERGUS FALLS, Minn. — Sherry Nehk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Nehk, has been named to Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Sherry, a 17-year-old senior at Fergus Falls High School, is active in music and works as a nurse's aide at Lake Region Hospital.

Sherry attends the Fargo, N.D., church, where she is pianist.

ble fear of insecurity, who is literally getting his mind OFF the Kingdom of God and God's promise of protection and trying to carve out for HIMSELF a sure protection — that God's Word condemns! But wise saving He surely does not!

I hope this makes it clear for any of you who were unsure, brethren. I certainly hope we can always maintain our BALANCE and avoid extremes in either direction!

It Takes Caution

Some people have felt it wise to lay up "emergency" supplies of dried or canned food. Frankly, so do I! I doubt whether we have enough to last more than a month at the outside, but frankly I do not feel it would be unwise to have an emergency food stock. But there again, IF THAT IS WHERE WE PUT OUR HEART, if we want a FIVE- or 10-YEAR supply, that's going to an EXTREME and placing our trust and hope in something purely PHYSICAL.

Again, it is not terribly unlikely that possession of emergency food-stuffs might make someone horribly vulnerable to armed attacks from others in the event of a national emergency, so it all takes some cautious thought.

I believe Christ's statement on "take no thought for your life" (anxious thought, worry). His "sermon on the mount" is the living principle by which we should live! Each individual has to have his OWN conscience in what amount of savings or food he feels is right for him. And it is a purely individual decision — each trying his own heart in the sight of his God and knowing where to draw the line between the normally expected common sense and the extreme of fear and dependence on carnal, physical means for survival.

That's about it for now, brethren. THANK YOU again for the very encouraging letters you have sent! The Work is GROWING now as NEVER before; more and more thousands will be coming to join us in this great Work this coming year. So let's all keep GROWING in God's Spirit and be the kind of loving, giving, serving, sharing examples that will inspire all around us and be a light to this world!

Your brother in Christ,
Garner Ted Armstrong

and Senatobia, Miss.

The issue was the first of 21 tabloid editions slated for 1975. The tabloid, dated for the week ending Feb. 8, contains 27 separate articles, compared to 10 in the January Plain Truth.

Starting in serial form in the issue is Herbert W. Armstrong's latest book, The Incredible Human Potential. Other articles include, "Prophecy Is No Longer a Dirty Word," "How Liberated Can You Get?," "Who Will Feed the Hungry Millions?," "Gamer Ted Armstrong Speaks Out," a new column by Stanley Rader, satire by syndicated columnist Art Buchwald, and a number of syndicated cartoons.

Benjamin Chapman, subscription manager for the United States, said 1,374,204 copies were sent to U.S. subscribers. In addition, 162,000 professional offices around the United States were sent copies; 39,986 issues went to libraries; 27,000 went to people in media industries (these copies included a response card, a press release and a letter); 6,257 went to South American English-speaking subscribers; 11,000 to West Indies English-speaking subscribers; and 165,526 copies to Canada. (Beginning with the Feb. 22 issue the Canadian office plans to begin printing and mailing Canadian editions from within the country.)

The Bricket Wood, England, office is handling the printing and mailing of European copies. The number was not available at press time.

International Issues

Some areas of the world will receive PT's every four weeks, as opposed to a biweekly schedule, with some first issues of the new format scheduled to appear in early March, Mr. Chapman said.

"I have received many new subscriptions as a result of people receiving Plain Truths in libraries and in doctors' offices," Mr. Chapman stated. "Many people have written in and made the comment that, 'I saw your Plain Truth in my doctor's waiting room.' Subsequent copies going to professionals and libraries will have some type of convenient tear-out card or ready reference for people to subscribe for their own copies. We've got to get it in their hands so they can look it over."

The new format's cost is lower than the old magazine, Mr. Chapman said. "We're talking about a Plain Truth that is running around four cents apiece, including postage. Previous to this the Plain Truth ran around a dime, maybe 11 cents," he said.

"We've taken a look at our overall budget for the Plain Truth production, and we are going to be at the end of this year, even with a substantial increase in our circulation, under budget as far as Plain Truth's costs."

Increased circulation in the immediate future "depends on our budget," stated Mr. Chapman. "Really, when you get right down to it, we can increase our circulation pretty easily." But, he added, "we've got to do it within budget."

their lives together. They were sweethearts much longer than husband and wife; their shared experiences span eight decades.

Mrs. Wilson, talented as a storyteller in relating the experiences of their lives together, is approvingly attended by Ivan and supported by him as he occasionally injects clarifying remarks or supplies a missing

Wilson's occasional subtle suggestion that we investigate for ourselves his offbeat religion in the form of the Plain Truth and the radio broadcast. Only after we had been disappointed in several religious experiences did we think twice about it.

A few years of development later, we were both baptized into the true Church. This dear friend of ours had borne us as spiritual fruit.

Mr. Wilson, a Church member since 1964, has set for us a good example. His life also stands good as an example to many other friends. Again, from Western Alumnus:

"A colleague said to Mr. Wilson, 'Do you know what your greatest fault is? It is a complete lack of vanity. Every man ought to have a respectable amount of it. No, I'll take it back. The kind of modesty and humility you have surpasses human understanding. I'm in no position to judge.'"

In 1973 Ivan Wilson's name was reinstated as synonymous with art at WKU. A large, fine building was completed on Western's campus and in a formal ceremony was officially dedicated as the Ivan Wilson Center for Fine Arts. He has also been honored by his many friends from Western and elsewhere. They know of his advanced age and poor health and feel that he will live in their memories as a great man; and he will.

As an artist, Ivan Wilson captured with watercolor the beauty of the world around him. As a man, he has painted with his beautiful life an image of a better world to come.

It took years of friendship before we began to take seriously Mr.

REGINA, Sask. — The first provincewide teenage basketball tournament for the seven churches in Saskatchewan was held here Dec. 21 and 22. About 70 teenagers converged here to compete for the honors.

The hometown Regina and Saskatoon teams were the starting favorites to win, but such was not the case.

The boys from the Yorkton and Moosomin, Sask., churches played consistently aggressive basketball throughout to upend the high-scoring Saskatoon boys in the semifinals and later sweep past Regina in the championship match.

The girls from the Prince Albert and Tisdale churches squeaked past a determined Regina team 20-18 in Basketball is not as well known here as in other parts of North America, but the spectators soon found themselves enthralled in the games from start to finish. The teenagers played all out from the opening tip-off.

About 10 young adults have volunteered their services to local brethren for painting, cleaning, landscaping, car washing and odd jobs. All earnings from this project will be forwarded to headquarters to help defray the cost of the Pittsburgh campaign.

DALLAS, Tex. — A square dance was given for Mr. and Mrs. James Currie and family Dec. 23.

The Curries are moving to Canada, and the Dallas North and South church areas took this opportunity to say farewell.

Mr. Currie has served in the Dallas area as a deacon and local elder.

At the square dance were toe tapping, hand clapping and quick-thinking foot movements. There were special features so everyone could be included in the fun.

At intermission cookies and punch were served to renew enthusiasm and energy.

The Curries were presented with a silver tea service from the Dallas brethren as a token of their love, service and devotion over the last 13 years here. Pam Smith.

Staying Busy

MONROE, La. — A 93-year-old woman here has found a way to stay busy and make a contribution to the Work.

Mrs. Sally Stove made 14 quilt tops in 1974. She gave the proceeds from sale of the quilts to the Church.

"[It's] the only way I am able to contribute," she says.

The work is not easy for her since she suffers dizziness from high blood pressure and her hands are shaky.

Some of the young adults in the church here visit Mrs. Stove at the Monroe Manor, where she lives, and play checkers or help her with the quilt tops. She can still see and hear well and seldom misses church services. Boyce Martin.

The Pack's Back

BIG SANDY — Gary Starling, representative of the Boy Scouts of America from Gilmer, Tex., and Dr. Wilmer E. Parrish, unit commissioner and East Texas executive-board member, met Jan. 6 with newly organized Cub Scout Committee members Jerry Gentry, Charles Marsh and Ellis Stewart, all of Big Sandy, and cubmaster Jim Baugher of Gladewater, Tex., to recharter Pack 198.

The pack has been inactive since the closing of Imperial Schools (the elementary and high schools on the campus of Ambassador College) last summer. The new charter is sponsored by the local church, with minister Al Mischnick the institutional representative.

The pack is beginning with two dens; Mrs. Beulah Dykes is the leader of the Big Sandy den, and Mrs. Donna Baugher is den leader in Gladewater.

Those in the Big Sandy den: Loyd Aga, den chief; Jesse Allen; Isaac Hamilton; David Hanna; Russell Heath; Randall Kelly; David Schurter; Vernon Schurter; Jimmy Stewart; and Steve Walker.

The Gladewater den: Chuck Baugher, den chief; Norman Baugher; Charles Dickenson; Anthony Turner; and Steven Turner.

In the committee meeting Mr. Baugher said that a project planned for the pack, and the main objective of the year, is the establishing of a

Costumed Brethren

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — "Look out for the clown, Cleopatra," yelled Mark Antony, as squirt-gun-wielding pastor Les McCole shot a stream of water in their direction.

Such were the antics in a crowd of costumed brethren from the Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo, Calif., churches as they gathered the evening of Dec. 7 at the first annual costume ball here.

The Big Bad Wolf and Little Red Riding Hood danced alongside the

A.M. and P.M. churches. More than 150 children from 1 to 12 invaded the church hall Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29, for one of the highlights of the year. For several years the Akron Children's Party has been held annually.

The church hall was converted into a winter paradise with hundreds of huge snowflakes dangling from the ceiling and snowmen and pine trees decorating the floor.

The afternoon began with games, with the children divided into three age groups. The loudest and most exciting game was the balloon stomp. Each child had four balloons tied to his ankle. Relay races and tags-of-war were other games.

Later in the afternoon the children were served popcorn balls, brownies, ice-cream bars and soft drinks. Then the children sat down and roared to the antics of Donald Duck and Laurel and Hardy. Thomas J. Harrison Jr.

Two Events

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Two events made Dec. 28, 1974, memorable for the church here.

likes of old-fashioned folk, jolly-faced clowns, Aunt Jemima and the Jolly Green Giant.

The grand promenade at the end of the ball proved difficult for the judges because of scores of original costumes.

But finally, to cheers, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Rojas, dressed as rabbits — Mrs. Rojas with a protruding pregnant pouch — were chosen as the winners in the adult couples' division.

Also selected as best in their respective divisions were Yvonne Schwab as Raggedy Ann and Tim Leach as a swashbuckling pirate in the teen division and Jeanne Chiering and David Dees in the children's division. Terry and Diana Seymour.

Lynette had been in a coma since the accident. Mr. Pyle asked the congregation to pray for the girl's recovery.

New Youth Program

OMAHA, Neb. — Interested parents and young people of this church area gathered Saturday evening, Jan. 4, for a potluck dinner and organizational meeting for the newly formed Youth Activities Program.

Meeting at the Willow Brook Plaza, the group of 50 divided into two sections.

The committee from the Lincoln and Beatrice, Neb., areas met Saturday evening, Jan. 18, to define their objectives further, while the crew from the Omaha brainstormed ideas on the following Saturday evening.

The youths, ages 6 to 16, will be involved in a program based upon the 4-H concept of projects and activities. The recreational sessions will provide projects, demonstrations, tours and picnics throughout the year.

It's a program designed to meet the needs and interests of the youths.

Ministerial trainee Dave Havir will coordinate the program with the assistance of Jim Moore. Shirley Johnson.

The Hoedown

CALGARY, Alta. — On Saturday night, Dec. 21, 1974, in Calgary, home of the renowned Calgary Stampede, the church here was staging its annual western social.

To get into the spirit of things everyone donned his best western duds, although a few came closer to looking like hoboes than cowboys. Especially conspicuous was one local dude, Don Hildabrand, decked out in his fancy Mexican outfit complete with brightly speckled sombrero.

The event bolted to a roaring start with an hour's display of western talent. Entertainment included a frontier saloon scene with George McIntosh and Gary Poffenroth and country-and-western tunes performed by such local entertainers as Linda Thomas singing "On Top of the World" and Fred Omelusik with his rendition of "Cross-Eyed Girl Who Lived on Top of the Hill."

Even the kids performed several old-time western favorites.

Also included was an act by several deacons, who brought down the house with a mock rendition of a trio of bluegrass performers.

After the entertainment was a good old-fashioned hoedown. Glen Doig.

Potato Pushers

LONGVIEW, Tex. — The church here has recently had activities for both teenagers and youngsters.

The teens recently bowled at the Oil Bowl Lanes here and finished off the evening with some pizza from Shakey's Pizza Parlor.

On Sunday, Jan. 5, 6- to 12-year-olds participated in fun and games under the guidance of Tom Cash, Bob Miller and Lyn Newsome. Pushing a potato with the nose was the most popular with the youngsters. Later they enjoyed refreshments. Carol Klotz and Beverly Miller.

from the Chicago, Ill., and Omaha, Neb., churches also attended.

Among the fun and games set up for the occasion were guess the cracker barrel, shoot the moon, washer toss, Snoopy golf game, bottle-cap throw, beat the egghead, ring the bottle, ring the nails, dart-throw balloon game, puzzles, a cakewalk, pro golf and dunk tank.

The dunk tank was one of the most popular games when various members lucked out and got dunked in the water by accurate ball throwers.

The first hour everyone was allowed to practice up on the games, after which the supervisors kept written records of winners. The ones who scored the greatest number of points won prizes.

Mrs. Carol Westbrook guessed the exact number of crackers in a jar and was declared the winner.

The youth under 12 years of age with the most game points was Kurt Lemkuhl, and the winner over 12 years old was Scott Day.

Three times during the afternoon a kangaroo court was held with Duane Williams as judge in his black coat robe and Larry Boss, wearing a large star, as sheriff.

Randy Kobernat, minister, was the last "arrested" person to be brought out of the jail for trial.

Money taken in from food sold will go into the teenagers' fund. A number of beautiful cakes provided by the ladies were auctioned off by Mr. Kobernat to help the fund. Larry Grove.

Sociable Eligibles

DALLAS, Tex. — The Dallas church area Jan. 11 gave an Eligibles' Social Dance at a Ramada Inn here.

A wide selection of music provided by Bill Hale and Wilbur Lewis enabled everyone to participate in the Paul Jones, polkas, rock 'n' roll and even waltzes.

Sam Reeves was master of ceremonies, and with help from Neil McIver presented the special guest of the evening.

Mike Long was the first of many gentlemen who danced with Sabrena, an ex-stripper with the measurable measurements of 44-26-36. The ex-stripper turned out to be a broom created by Mrs. Ellen McIver and Brenda McIver.

Sandwiches, chips and other hors d'oeuvres were provided.

Bartenders were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kendrick and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Smith. With a little help from their friends, all the drinks were accepted with welcome.

Those who were on the planning committee were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kendrick, Rowan Lusby, Ellen McIver, Mona Perry and Mark Morrison. Pamela Smith.

Y Get-Together

CONCORD, N.H. — On Dec. 25, 1974, despite a snowstorm that dropped up to eight inches on this area, the church here was host of a get-together for the other churches in New England in the Concord YMCA.

Members of the Springfield and Boston, Mass., and Montpelier, Vt., churches came.

Several rooms were available to the group at the Y. In the gym Concord and Springfield got in some hoop action, and Concord won the basketball game by 78-66.

Also in the gym were ladies' basketball, little boys' basketball, little boys' soccer and square dancing.

Games such as Yahtzee were played by the widows.

All day meals were eaten downstairs with a Walt Disney movie, Follow Me, Boys, shown.

A sing-along lured people to another section of the building.

In the game room young and old scuffled over shuffleboard, dued in Ping-Pong, shot pool and battled in air hockey.

To top it off, in an isolated room upstairs novices and veterans ricocheted squash balls off four walls while avoiding being squashed themselves. Bruce Elder.

Hop, Bop

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — "One, 2, 3 o'clock, 4 o'clock, rock," were the words to that now-famous song that began the hoppin' and boppin' for the teenagers here the night of Dec. 21, 1974.

It was an evening of bobby socks, ponytails, straight-leg jeans, slicked-back hair, penny loafers and bubble gum. About 50 teens danced to the music of Bill Haley and the Comets, Chuck Berry, the Andrews Sisters and the Beach Boys, to name a few.

The last hour and a half was devoted to modern music by a group of local-church talent. G. Dennis Brady.

Texhoma Flamenco

DURANT, Okla. — Dec. 28, 1974, is a date that will long be remembered by members of the Ada, Okla., and Sherman, Tex., Churches of God. On that day was a potpourri of activities and a visit with Charles V. Dorothy, who had flown in from Pasadena to be with brethren at combined services here.

Dr. Dorothy, a minister, Ambassador faculty member and member of the Doctrinal Committee at headquarters, brought the main message and conducted a short Bible study after services.

Following services supper was served in the ample facilities of Southeastern Oklahoma State University. A fun show featuring children, young people and the young at heart was next and included a variety of musical numbers, skits, recitations and a guest flamenco guitarist (Dr. Dorothy).

After the fun show a spirited baked-goods auction (there was a lot of rum cake) netted more than $300, with proceeds earmarked for the Work and the local youth-activities fund.

The children in an adjacent room saw cartoons and other films while the adults settled down to some serious Texhoma-style stompin' to recorded music and a live country-and-western band until 1 a.m. Marc Curd.

Portable Books

SHERIDAN, Wyo. — Mrs. Carl Larsen, member of the Billings, Mont., church, is maintaining a portable church library for the brethren in the area.

The library material is boxed up every other week and taken 140 miles from the Larsens' home to the Billings church. The material — books, magazines, newspapers, bulletins and Ambassador College publications — is placed on two card tables for perusal or checkout.

This project, begun in January, 1974, with about 80 pieces of reading matter, has grown to 133. Plans include binding copies of the old Correspondence Course, Tomorrow's World and possibly the new Correspondence Course.

The library is supported by contributions for purchases and also contains volumes loaned by members. Polly F. Spracklen.

New Congregation

SHERIDAN, Wyo. — At long last the members in northern Wyoming have been rewarded with a church here. The church began Dec. 14, 1974.

About 25 members in the area have in the past traveled 400 miles to Denver, Colo.; then 276 miles to Rapid City, S.D.; 200 miles to Douglas, Wyo.; 140 miles to Billings, Mont.; 175 miles to Newcastle, Wyo.; 200 miles to Riverton, Wyo.; 100 miles to Gillette, Wyo.; 80 miles to Hardin, Mont.; or 70 miles to Sun Lodge, Mont.

The attendance has varied from 30 to several hundred, depending on where they were meeting and how far others were traveling.

Until recently there was only one regular church service in Wyoming. The church was split when the membership reached about 180. Half went south to Wheatland, Wyo., while the rest went north to Montana. The regular attendance at Billings, Mont., increased from about 50 to 75, and again the church outgrew its meeting place.

So now — instead of rising at 4 a.m. on Saturday, doing necessary chores and getting away about 7 or 7:30 for a three-hour drive to Billings for morning services, preparing and carrying a meal to be served at midday and having a second service in the afternoon — now the members are blessed with a service on Saturday afternoon in Sheridan. Nobody will need to drive more than 100 miles. Trip cost will be reduced by 60 percent or more. The members will be financially able to put more into the Work. Polly F. Spracklen.

Basketball's Positive Side

CONCORD, N.H. — In the focal point of winter family entertainment.

In a recent interview Tony Limanni, captain of the church's teen team, the North Stars, outlined the positive effect basketball has on the family and the teens themselves.

Tony stressed that basketball is friendly competition that develops character through sport. Such qualities as leadership, discipline and teamwork are benefits produced during the fun of the game. The teens learn that God likes to have fun, that He is not against people having a good time.

Tony mentioned that this year he had noticed a change in concentration toward a winning, never-give-in attitude in the teens.

The other team is the Golden Hornets, an older group of players.

The latest game ended in a 104-93 victory for the North Stars. These games also serve as valuable training for the cheerleaders: they learn coordination, teamwork and concern for others, along with poise and self-confidence.

There are halftime activities such as sing-alongs, square dances and ballroom-dance lessons, children's basketball and talent shows. Bruce Elder.

Teens Hold Tea

DAYTON, Ohio — The teen girls in the church here sponsored a tea for the ladies of the church Dec. 24.

Cohostesses were Janelle Chapman and Vicki Wetzel. Mrs. Barbara Chapman and Mrs. Betty Stapleton kept things moving in the kitchen while Janelle and Vicki served the tea and cookies.

A cosmetologist, Mrs. Jan Tourney, gave a lecture. For several years Mrs. Tourney managed her own business before coming into the Church and had a successful beauty shop in northern California.

Mrs. Tourney provided information on hair and nail care and application of makeup. Mrs. Jan Fannin modeled.

Fifty-eight people gained knowledge on proper grooming during a question-and-answer period.

Mrs. Tourney is visiting friends in many church areas throughout the United States. Jim Stapleton.

Jam-Packing Norwalk's Building

NORWALK, Calif. — About 200 members of the Santa Monica, Glendale, Long Beach and Norwalk, Calif., churches jam-packed the Norwalk church's building for an afternoon social Dec. 25.

Activities began at noon with a family-style luncheon.

After lunch the young and young at heart tried their skill at sit-down balloon popping and back-to-back relay races. Some squared off for dominoes, bridge and hearts.

At 4 p.m. the stage was set for a talent show. The program included singing, dancing, instrumentals, poetry, comic skits, a fashion show and the re-enactment of the Ali-Foreman heavyweight-championship fight complete with instant replay — in slow motion.

As the sun went down the movie screen went up and participants watched Walt Disney's The Living Desert. Druria and Drury Sylvester.

Newark Prevailed

NEWARK, N.J. — Newark's senior basketball team overwhelmed 1974 Mount Pocono Festival champion Brooklyn-Queens, N.Y., at the annual Dec. 5 "White Elephant Day Sale" classic sponsored by the team.

At halftime Newark led 52-25, but Brooklyn-Queens staged a fantastic comeback in the second half that brought them to within 10 points of Newark.

Newark finally prevailed 75-59.

In earlier tourney games Newark had downed Philadelphia 86-33 while the host Brooklyn team received a bye. Those teams interested in playing the Newark team may write coach Karl Klink, 24 Beverly Road, Springfield, N.J. Thedis L. Cunningham.

Bandita Volleyball

BIG SANDY, Tex. — The women's volleyball team of the church here, the Banditas, won a pre-season tournament held here Jan. 14 and 21 for teams of the Longview (Tex.) City Women's Volleyball League.

The Big Sandy women won 14 straight games against the other seven teams in their bracket to advance to a play-off with another team that had won all 14 of its games.

After losing their first play-off game, the Banditas roared back to win the next two games and the pre-season tournament. Each team member was awarded a trophy.

The team consists of Bev Nelson, Ivern Allen, Barb Rhome, Melba Hammer, Faye Eakins, Carol Long, Terri Hammer, Mary Haworth and Marty Ronish. Jim Rhome is coach. James Worthen.

'He didn't teach art; he taught life itself'

By Larry Hahn
Bowling Green Member
BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — For 38 years Ivan Wilson's name was synonymous with art at Western Kentucky University here. He had retired in 1958 from Western's art department, however, so I did not know of him when I came to WKU as a young student in 1966. I did become acquainted with his before me had been touched and changed by their contact with Mr. Wilson. As with me, he had made them feel like somebody.

It was during his long tenure at Western Kentucky that many of these relationships developed. Bill "Whitey" Sanders, editorial cartoonist for the Milwaukee, Wis., Journal, one of his former students, expressed it thus in Western Worldwide Church of God member Ivan Wilson was honored by Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, with the dedication of the school's $4.2 million fine-arts center to him in 1973. Mr. Wilson, 85, has been a member for nearly 11 years. The infirmities of old age prevent him from attending services, but he listens to tapes of sermons.

Mr. Wilson has become one of the most-honored persons associated with WKU. The fall, 1973, edition of the university's alumni magazine, Western Alumnus, says, "Ivan Wilson, whose name the new Fine Arts Center proudly bears, is one of Western's most unforgettable characters."

The accompanying story is a reflection on Mr. Wilson's life from a friend, Larry Hahn.

Mr. Hahn, a chemist with Lenk Co. in Franklin, Ky., became acquainted with Mr. Wilson's work while a student at WKU.

artwork while working as a guide at the Kentucky Museum on Western's campus. Previously uninterested in art, I gradually developed an excited enthusiasm for his work. He had in my eyes captured the quintessence of creation's flairs and flourishes, and I just had to find out more.

The museum curator explained that Mr. Wilson, 85, lived just off campus and would be glad to meet and talk with me. I had thought artists were a little off, and the curator did warn me that Mr. Wilson was "quite religious in a rather offbeat way." Summoning my courage, I called him and made an appointment to meet him in his home.

My first meeting with Mr. Wilson dazzled and dazed me. I was dazzled by the overwhelming beauty I saw as I browsed through stacks of paintings he had saved back as personal favorites. I was dazed by the warmth and humility of this famous artist. There was no mistaking the fact that I really liked his work, and that he really liked me.

Since that initial encounter, my perspective of Ivan Wilson has expanded, but has not really been altered. As a teacher, as an artist, as a husband and as a man, his life's patterns have remained consistent with those favorable first impressions. This held true even in his "offbeat" religion, I found out later.

I was amazed, and just a little jealous, to find that literally thousands

Alumnus:

"That small, quiet, gentle 97-pound man put meaning into my life. He didn't teach art; he taught life itself. He convinced me that my drawing had to have purpose — that it was important only if it said something of value . . . He sought some virtue in every student that entered his class; then he enlarged that virtue and put it to work for the student — and for mankind."

Acute Observer

As Mr. Wilson helped me learn to paint with watercolors, I also learned about his background in the field. He grew up on a farm near Hazel, Ky., and from the beginning was an acute observer of his surroundings.

In later years his memory reservoir expanded through travels in the Western United States, in Mexico and in Europe.

Though his approach to watercolors has been highly disciplined, he has shown himself flexible and creative. The imaginative titling of his works, sometimes showing thoughtful sensitivity and in other instances a wry sense of humor, lends interest to his creations. One scene, a small country church enveloped by ice and snow, he aptly titled Frozen Religion.

Before 1934 Mr. Wilson had painted in oil for many years, but it was in that year that he made a discovery. He had an idea he wanted to get down on paper fast, and a tin-box set of cake watercolors was handy. The product of that brief effort was a lifelong conversion to watercolors.

He said to me, "I found at that one sitting that I could do more out of that little tin box than I had ever been able to achieve with oil."

Mr. Wilson's zeal for watercolors is best evidenced by his prolific output since that time; his numbered works are 3,674.
